critical gap districts

Key Finding: Machinga District in Southern Region has the highest food security risk score (436) in Malawi. 215 critical price spike events were detected across the analysis period. The most affected commodity is Maize with 123 critical events — representing over 70% of all critical spikes.

Methodology: Spike detection uses a dual-method approach requiring both month-over-month percentage change $\geq 20\%$ AND rolling 12-month z-score ≥ 1.5 . This eliminates false positives from seasonal variation. Severity follows the WFP ALPS (Alert for Price Spikes) framework.

Severity Level	Threshold	Count	% of Observations	Recommended Action
Critical	$\geq 60\%$ change + z-score ≥ 2.5	215	8.29%	Immediate intervention required
Severe	$\geq 40\%$ change + z-score ≥ 2.0	799	30.79%	Prepare emergency response
Moderate	$\geq 20\%$ change + z-score ≥ 1.5	1581	60.92%	Monitor closely
Normal	Below thresholds	0	—	No action required

Market Monitoring Gaps

Districts with high food security risk but insufficient market monitoring coverage

Why this matters: A district with high risk score but few monitored markets means food crises may go undetected. These gaps represent priority areas for WFP monitoring expansion.
